Then the Lord said to him, "Who has made man's mouth? Who makes him mute, or deaf, or seeing, or blind? Is it not I, the Lord? Now therefore go, and I will be with your mouth and teach you what you shall speak." Exodus 3:11-12

Spiritual Honor

By Oswald Chambers

I am obligated both to Greeks and non-Greek, both to the wise and the foolish. That is why I am so eager to preach the gospel also to you who are in Rome.

Romans 1:14-15

Paul's obligation to others came from an overwhelming sense of his indebtedness to Jesus Christ, and he spent himself to express it. The great inspiration in Paul's life was his view of Jesus Christ as his spiritual creditor. Do I feel this same sense of obligation to Christ, so that I preach the gospel to "Greeks and non-Greeks . . . the wise and the foolish"—to every unsaved soul? The spiritual honor of my life is to pay my debt to Jesus Christ in relation to them.

Every bit of my life that is of value I owe to the redemption of Jesus Christ. Am I doing anything to help him manifest his redemption in others' lives? Only when the Spirit forges inside me a sense of obligation to Christ will I be able to spend myself for him.

"You are not your own; you were bought at a price" (1 Corinthians 6:19–20). If I have a sense of indebtedness, I know that I am not a superior person but a slave of Jesus Christ. Paul sold himself to Jesus Christ and became the debtor of all. "I owe something to everyone on the face of the earth because of the gospel of Jesus," Paul is saying in Romans 1:14. "I owe it to the world to preach his word." Paul's sense of spiritual honor meant that he was free to be an absolute slave only. Quit worrying about yourself and be spent for others as the slave of Jesus. That is the meaning of being made broken bread and poured-out wine for him.

Six Daily Mission Fields

As a missionary, there are 6 basic mission fields in which you have the opportunity to serve. Each mission field is an opportunity for you to interact with those who do not know Christ, build relationships with them, and seek to share the wonderful news of how they can be forgiven and begin a relationship with their Creator. The six daily mission fields are home, work, leisure, church, the local community, and the wider world. In order to live as a missionary and impact these individual mission fields, we must be intentionally and strategically looking for where God is already at work and simply join Him. Every believer interacts with these various mission fields every day, but often misses their opportunity to view them through the eyes of a missionary. You can begin to intentionally develop your personal strategy of engaging your specific mission fields.
